Forex News

The dollar ended the week with a firmer tone against most majors. Sterling slipped to 1.3628, USD/CAD climbed to 1.3818 and USD/CHF to 0.8004, while the euro edged higher to 1.1678.

The Australian dollar was the standout, up 67 basis points to 0.7167 on firm energy and metals prices. The yen lagged, with USD/JPY at 158.99, keeping Tokyo intervention chatter alive.

The Fed's target range stands at 3.50%-3.75% with no cut delivered this year, so September pricing drives dollar risk. Eurozone flash PMIs landed at or above forecast, cushioning the euro.

Local News
